
PROF. TOMOYUKI FUKUMOTO

Professor, Faculty of Economics, Osaka University of Economics

LONDON
SPEAKER
BUREAU

Tomoyuki Fukumoto has been professor at the Osaka University of Economics since April 2021. Prior to his current position, he worked at the Bank of Japan (BOJ) for 32 years, including as director general of the International Department. In particular, he has extensive experience researching China's economy and the BOJ's relations with China. He was first secretary of the Japanese Embassy in China from 2000 to 2003 and chief representative of the BOJ Beijing Office from 2012 to 2015.

He obtained his BBL from Kyoto University in 1989. He studied Mandarin and China's economy at the Chinese University of Hong Kong and the University of International Trade and Economics from 1995 to 1997. He was a research fellow at the Ash Center, Harvard Kennedy School, from 2008 to 2009.

Topics

- Academics
- Asia
- China
- Economics
- Globalisation
- Strategy

With extensive experience in both academic and practical aspects of economic theory, Prof. Fukumoto has become a leading voice in economic analysis and financial policy, frequently sharing his insights on trends that shape regional and global economies. Known for his engaging and analytical approach, he has published numerous papers and studies that contribute significantly to understanding market dynamics and financial resilience. Prof. Fukumoto is committed to advancing economic thought and inspiring future economists to navigate and influence an increasingly complex financial landscape.

Prof. Fukumoto is fluent in Japanese, English and Mandarin.